'Give Us Love and a Job' Is Woman's Plea
Mrs. Schonnemaker Says Ten Million Feminine Workers Are Barred from Motherhood

Columbus, June 24—The chance to become a mother is being withheld from fourteen million American women workers, convicted to go out to work in order that their homes may be a home fit for the children of the future, says Mrs. Peter Schonnemaker.

'Give us love and a job,' Mrs. Schonnemaker pleaded to a meeting of American working women, held yesterday afternoon at the Athenaeum.

'The chance to become a mother is being withheld from fourteen million American women workers, convicted to go out to work in order that their homes may be a home fit for the children of the future,' she said.

'Give us love and a job,' Mrs. Schonnemaker pleaded to a meeting of American working women, held yesterday afternoon at the Athenaeum.

'In every community where we have a strong labor movement,' she said, 'we have a strong women's movement. And in every community where we have a weak labor movement, we have a weak women's movement.'

'Give us love and a job,' Mrs. Schonnemaker pleaded to a meeting of American working women, held yesterday afternoon at the Athenaeum.

'I am here today to tell you that the chance to become a mother is being withheld from fourteen million American women workers, convicted to go out to work in order that their homes may be a home fit for the children of the future,' she said.

'Give us love and a job,' Mrs. Schonnemaker pleaded to a meeting of American working women, held yesterday afternoon at the Athenaeum.

'In every community where we have a strong labor movement,' she said, 'we have a strong women's movement. And in every community where we have a weak labor movement, we have a weak women's movement.'

'Give us love and a job,' Mrs. Schonnemaker pleaded to a meeting of American working women, held yesterday afternoon at the Athenaeum.

'I am here today to tell you that the chance to become a mother is being withheld from fourteen million American women workers, convicted to go out to work in order that their homes may be a home fit for the children of the future,' she said.