Most states now offer some form of early voting, either by mail or in person. The rules vary by state. Mail-in ballots are available in all 50 states, but voters in some states are required to submit a valid excuse to receive one. Since the 2000s or earlier, voting by mail is the method in eight states.
"I think the system is cumbersome. There is a process for proving identity, citizenship, and age that could be streamlined and made less confusing for voters." - Deputy Town Clerk, Durham NH.

How Are U.S. Elections Run?

“The U.S. is characterized by a highly decentralized election administration system. The entities that do the rubber-meets-the-road functions of running an election are typically on the county or city/town level. . . . Each state’s election administration structure and procedures grew organically, as times changed and administering an election became an increasingly complex task.”

There are more than 10,000 election administration jurisdictions in the U.S. The size of these jurisdictions varies dramatically, with the smallest towns having only a few hundred registered voters and the largest jurisdiction in the country, Los Angeles County, with more than 4.7 million.

“A representative democracy is a system of government where citizens elect representatives to vote on laws on their behalf. A direct democracy is one where citizens vote on every issue themselves. The key difference between the two systems is who is voting on laws, elected officials or the citizens.”

“Critics say the level of local control can lead to mismanagement and inconsistent application of the law. This often comes into focus in large federal elections especially, when the media and the public focus on how different the voting experience can be depending on where a voter lives. On the other hand, this decentralization allows individual jurisdictions to experiment and innovate—to see how elections might best be run for the state and the locality’s particular circumstances.”

Should elections be controlled at the local or national level?

What are pros/cons to our current system?
Voting as a Right

Who can’t vote?

- Non-citizens, including permanent legal residents
- Some people with felony convictions (laws vary by state)
- Some people who are mentally incapable (laws vary by state)
- For presidential elections: US citizens residing in US territories
- Indigenous People living on tribal reservations

Jim Crow was a racial caste system which operated mainly in southern/border states from 1877 to the mid-1960s. This system consisted of anti-Black laws that relegated the status of African Americans to second-class citizens. This led to the legitimization of anti-Black racism.

15th Amendment (1869):
“The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.”

19th Amendment (1920):
The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

Voting Rights Act of 1965:
This act aimed to overcome legal barriers at the state and local levels that prevented African Americans from exercising their right to vote as guaranteed under the 15th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

National Voter Registration Act (1993):
The right to vote is a “fundamental right” that the federal, state, and local governments must all uphold. This includes reassessing and rectifying registration laws that harm voter participation due to discriminatory and unfair practices.
Voting as a Privilege

Something that is earned

Who does vote?

Voting as a PRIVILEGE

Something that can be taken away or limited just as easily as it can be given

Voting Statistics 2020:
- 155 million people turned out for the 2020 presidential election
- Had the highest voter turnout of the 21st century, with 66.8% of citizens
- Asian voter turnout was at an all-time high of 59.7%
- Voter turnout was highest among those ages 65 to 74 at 76.0%
- Percentage was lowest among those ages 18 to 24 at 51.4%
- Overall voter turnout increased as age increased
  - Exception of 75+, which had a voter turnout rate that was below 65-74 year olds

Voting Laws as of October 2022

States with Restrictive Voting Laws Enacted Since 2020 in Effect for Midterms

- Limit Election Day registration
- Expand documentary proof of citizenship for voter registration
- Increase likelihood of faulty voter purges
- Require voter to provide identification numbers when applying to vote by mail
- Requires newly registered voters to complete an address confirmation form
- Shift election authority from experienced election administrators to partisan-controlled county election boards

States with Expansive Voting Laws Enacted this Year in Effect for Midterms

- Requires historically discriminatory jurisdictions to get preclearance before making certain changes to election laws
- Expand number of days of early voting
- Extends the voter registration deadline
- Creates new protections for voters with disabilities
- Requires correctional facilities to assist eligible incarcerated voters with casting mail ballots

What do you appreciate about these voting laws?

What concerns you about these laws?

How do voting laws disproportionately impact some voters more than others?
What is Voter Fraud?

One-in-four Americans think voter fraud has been a major problem with voting by mail, contrary to evidence

% of U.S. adults who say voter fraud has been a problem when it comes to voting by mail in U.S. presidential elections

- No answer 1%
- Not sure 20%
- Major problem 25%
- Not a problem at all 27%

52% say voter fraud has been a problem when it comes to voting by mail in presidential elections

PEW RESEARCH CENTER

Q: How do you define voter fraud?

Q: How secure do you think our elections are?

The risks of committing voter fraud
Each act of voter fraud in a federal election will result in:
• 5 years in prison
• $10,000 fine

How many cases have been committed in the last few decades?

- A Brennan Center for Justice study found 31 cases of “intentional” voter fraud from 2000-2007
- The Heritage Foundation has found 1,334 cases of different types of voter fraud, ranging from duplicate votes, fraudulent use of absentee, impersonation fraud at the polls, ineligible voting, altering the vote count, etc... from 1982-2001
- A study for nonprofit, Electronic Registration Information Center, “identified 372 possible cases of double voting or voting on behalf of deceased people out of 14.6 million votes cast by mail in 2016 and 2018”. That is roughly .0025% per 14.6 million. (Washington Post)

THE “MOST SECURE” ELECTION

After the 2020 presidential election, a coalition of federal cybersecurity and election officials along with state election officials and representatives from voting machine companies issued a statement calling it the “most secure in American history.”

The group said there was “no evidence that any voting system deleted or lost votes, changed votes, or was in any way compromised.”

Claims that depend on unseen evidence in 2020

There is no evidence that foreign actors somehow changed votes over the internet, as MyPillow CEO Mike Lindell has repeatedly claimed.

There is no evidence that nonprofits collected illegal ballots that were then distributed to drop boxes by paid staffers, as alleged in the film “2000 Mules.” The purported evidence that was presented in that film is either false, contrived or misleading.

Various audits of electronic voting machines have found no evidence of improprieties. In fact, swing-state counties in which Dominion Voting Systems machines were used mostly voted for Trump.

Claims that have already been debunked or explained in 2020

Inaccurate vote totals in Antrim County, Mich., were a function of improperly configured voting machines.

There were no rampant irregularities in Maricopa County, Ariz., just a pattern of observers not understanding voting systems and tools.

Vote totals in states such as Pennsylvania or Wisconsin were not dependent on more people voting than were registered.

There was no uncaught double-counting of mail-in ballots in Georgia.

Social Media

Q: What are the political issues you are concerned about?

Social Sphere

Groupthink – A process of flawed decision making that occurs as a result of strong pressures among group members to reach an agreement

Q: Where do you get information about important public or political issues?

News

Propaganda – Use of information specifically created to affect individual people’s beliefs and ultimately to influence major events such as political elections.

Echo Chambers – Created by algorithms that result in major political divides as people lose the ability to converse with others of different political opinions.

Bias – According to some critics, the media can employ an elaborate and sophisticated array of techniques that allows reporters and media owners to slant news stories in favor of particular groups or interests.

Algorithms – Designed to increase user participation and time spent on these apps. Unfortunately, some side effects of these algorithms include informational echo chambers, the spread of false information, or even introducing users to communities with very extreme, potentially harmful ideologies.

Filter Bubbles – Algorithms create filter bubbles and silos shaped by corporate data collectors; they limit people’s exposure to a wider range of ideas and reliable information and eliminate alternate perspectives.

Slacktivism – People “support a cause by performing simple measures” but “are not truly engaged or devoted to making a change.” Slacktivism typically means turning to social media. It encompasses things like retweeting words of hope after a national disaster, liking a charity’s Facebook page, sharing political slogans, memes, or news items.

Why Do People Choose Not to Vote?

- Voter apathy or lack of interest
- No good choices for candidates
- Do not feel connected to the issues
- Vote will not matter/make difference
- Confused about the process
- Difficult to find quality information
Moving Forward: How Should we Engage People in Elections?

What have you learned tonight that changed how you think about elections and your participation in them?

- Funding and curriculum for our public schools
- All laws governing town, county and state workers
- Minimum wages and hours of work
- Full access to health care
- Decisions that impact our taxes at the state and local level.
